The U.S. State Department has designated a new official in Iran's Revolutionary Guards Corps (IRGC) following the downing of a U.S. drone last week in the country's southeast, the U.S. official said Friday. Mohammad Javad Shahriar, who has served as the IRGC's deputy political chief since January 2018, was designated under the Kingpin Act, the U.S. official said. The designation makes him a Specially Designated Global Terrorist. Shahriar was not named in the State Department statement, but a U.S. official said he is considered a key figure in the IRGC and has played an important role in its operations. ADVERTISEMENT The IRGC said Shahriar had been involved in the drone strike in the same region. "By taking this step today, the Trump administration has once again shown that its reckless and destabilizing policies will continue to elicit an appropriate Iranian response," the Iranian foreign minister said Friday. Iranian President Hassan Rouhani warned Thursday that the downing of the U.S. drone was the result of a "limited reaction" by his country, and said the incident would not "stop Iran from continuing its path" in the region. "If the U.S. adopts a tough approach, we will use our limited reaction, our limited response, against the U.S.," Rouhani said. The downing of the U.S. drone, which occurred in Iran's Sistan and Baluchestan Province last week, was the first time a U.S. military drone was shot down since June. A Pentagon spokesman told The Hill that Iran has fired missiles into the "territorial waters" of "two U.S. Navy ships operating in the Strait of Hormuz." "Both vessels sustained minor damage, and no casualties were reported. The incident underscores the dangerous and destabilizing situation in the Middle East," he said. Rouhani reiterated Friday that the U. 82157476af
